1.3.99

a Lesson in the University of The New Covenant

Theodore Cottingham, December 24, 2005 2:13pm. In van.

www.unc.bz

1. Thou art holy for I am holy and thou art Me with the simplicity of the gospel/surrender. Thank you for surrendering to who I am so that you can be who you are, who I made you to be, who I gave you; who I gave you as you, yea, to enjoy Me; Me enjoying you, knowing we are one in the joyful transcendence that yea, matters not to man's mind but transcends it; transcends the matter, the mind, being Mine.
2. I love you. I give you Me. I give you this day, this Christmas to behold Me in sorrow, not; mourning, not; but yea, laughter and joy in every meal and conversation; see Me, feel Me, know Me as My word emits My word and see Me as such, thus.
3. I am Me, I am you, yea, you know who you are, what you have, and where you're going (1). And I pray, I pleased am. I love you. Thank you for caring Me, caring for Me in the state that yea, I am in, not forcing Me to resound in your image that you once had of Me. But yea, you break all molds of Me now in so many, them seeing Me/you/them in acquaintances of peace and yea, Christmas. Christmas lights of only Me, My lighting, yea, decoration not, but My radiance which knows and never knows not-knowing, again.
4. I love you. I give you Me. Strength for what lies ahead; all light and no darkness. Friends many, acquaintances new, far and past and previous, future'd. Amen. I give you this day. Grasp Me in love and love My love. I love you. Good day.

Footnote:

1. John 8:14a Jesus answered, "Even if I testify on my own behalf, my testimony is valid, for I know where I came from and where I am going.